THE DAYS OF RAJ SIGNATURE COCKTAILS

PINK GIN

185

Gin with bitters and ice.

The drink is a concoction of just two ingredients: gin and bitters. Known as Pink Gin, it was a drink favored by the British navy before it was taken up all over the far-flung empire. It was believed that only naval officers were entitled to gin, while other ranks had only the choice of rum. These officers used to mix gin with bitters or lime. In fact, Angostura bitters was invented as a cure for seasickness. 'When they sailed past the equator, a lot of people fell sick. 'Because their country was very cold, when they sailed to the equator, they got very uncomfortable and fell sick - they got malaria, scurvy. So the commander of the ship asked the sailors to drink this to feel better.'

DOR HALF n HALF

185

Whisky with a dash of bitters, clove, cinnamon, half soda and half water, served with lemon wedges. It's a pretty straightforward name for a drink made of one part whisky, one part soda water and served over ice.

Nothing fancy about it - It's a straight-up, no-fuss, manly drink.

'Basically, after a long day, the British planters would come together. They gathered in a bar and used to drink. In those days, you couldn't get vodka; you got a lot of whisky and gin.' Half n Half was a popular drink preferred by British planters. After a hard day at work, the planters and other colonial workers would escape the heat and head to the verandas or bars for this drink

COLT 55 AND 2 BULLETS

185

A Shot of Whisky and Gin dipped in a glass of beer with some Cinnamon powder. This original cocktail was inspired by a story that took place during the colonial era. A lady stomped into the dining hall and discovered that her man was with another woman. The captain approached the intruding lady to take her order and she replied -

'Give me a Code 55 and two bullets.'

But of course, there was no such cocktail!

He realized that the lady was asking for 'a Colt 55 and two bullets'.

Luckily, no blood was shed!

The drink was created to reflect the drama and intensity of the love triangle.

This drink has two test tubes into the glass to represent the two bullets (red with gin and black with whisky), against a gold background (beer)

MINT BEER

185

Fresh mint, lemonade, beer and crush ice

A cooling pick-me-up on the verandah in the height of Indian heat, this goes down equally well in summer days
